What About the White House?

In an essay this winter for the Charger Pride committee, Emily Harrold wrote, "I would like to see the museums, the monuments, and hopefully the changing of the guards at Arlington Cemetery." Later she added, "I can’t forget the White House. It’s going to be almost the best part to see the White House."

She is talking about a trip that is planned for the spring of 2018. It will be led by L-M social studies teacher Kelly Tate. Both Tate and her student, Emily, are second generation Chargers. They are being assisted in part by the booster group Charger Pride.

Ron Demers of KTIV at Albert City Public Library

The Albert City Public Library proudly presents Ron Demers, Chief Meteorologist and Weather Anchor from KTIV, on Thursday, April 6, 2017 at 7pm.

Ron, a Storm Lake native, is the son of Bob and Marilyn Demers. He has one brother and five sisters that made for a lively, entertaining household growing up. He graduated from St. Mary’s in 1988. He worked part time for KAYL Radio the summer of 1989 and 1990, anchoring sports and weather which eventually led to doing the news.

Ron went to Briar Cliff University for his Bachelor of Arts in Mass Communications and a Minor in Music. He then became a meteorologist through Mississippi State University.

While in college, Ron was news editor of the campus newspaper, worked at KWIT radio, and started an internship at KTIV, all in the same year. KTIV’s internship turned into a part time job as editor and reporter, which led to a full time reporter job upon graduation.

Shortly thereafter, Ron started doing the weekend weather. His interest in the weather grew and he took the morning weather position at KTIV. When Ron was growing up, he never would have guessed he’d be doing weather for the station he grew up watching! Of course, now Ron is Chief Meteorologist and Weather Anchor of Channel 4 News at 5, 6, and 10 p.m. Ron was awarded the coveted Seal of Approval from the American Meteorologist Society in 1998.

Ron and his wife, Katie, live in Sioux City with their four children. He enjoys playing the piano, creating video tributes for people, and playing a round of golf when he has a chance.

Come, meet our local celebrity, Ron Demers! He will tell us all about the weather with time for Q&A and possibly some musical entertainment! Refreshments will be served after the program.

Celtic Guitarist
Jerry Barlow
Returns to Fonda Arts Center

The Fonda Arts Center is pleased to once again welcome Celtic fingerstyle guitarist Jerry Barlow in concert. The performance will be on Saturday, April 8th, at 7 p.m. at the Arts Center on the NW corner of Fourth and Main in Fonda. A wine tasting with InnSpiration Winery will precede the concert at 6 p.m. Tickets for the event are $12 in advance or at the door. Limited seating is available.

Barlow is a warm, accessible performer and storyteller. His unique and skillfully delivered repertoire incorporates favorite traditional pieces as well as his own Celtic-inspired compositions. His expressive arrangements of lively jigs, spirited reels, and haunting airs is described as music to soothe the soul, warm the heart and lift the spirit.

In concert, Jerry brings traditional Celtic tunes alive by sharing the history, humor, and legends behind the music. “Jerry Barlow … a performer who is skilled, funny and riveting. Out of the many musicians performing today, the vast majority are skilled in either performing on their instrument or in entertaining an audience. It’s very rare and extremely enjoyable to see a musician at the very top of his craft in both areas,” says Scott Beach, Director of Colorado Celtic Entertainment.

Barlow’s latest CD, VOYAGE OF HOPE, was released in early September. It features songs about the Irish immigration to America in the mid-1800s. His 2011 recording, FIELDS AND FENCES, was one of five nominees for Instrumental Album of the Year by the Independent Music Awards. The Indie Acoustic Project selected the title song from Jerry’s CD, BRING DOWN THE STORM, as “one of the best songs of 2006.”

Music from all of Barlow’s recordings can be heard regularly on National Public Radio stations. He has been featured in Fingerstyle Guitar magazine, and was profiled in Celtic Connection. He has performed in the Gates Auditorium for the University of Denver’s Lamont School of Music, the Arvada Center for the Performing Arts, and is a favorite of High plains Public Radio’s Living Room Concert Series in Amarillo, TX.

Hey, I forgot to tell you about an interesting exhibit coming in July! “German Iowa & the Global Midwest” will be at Laurens Public Library July 6-17. (During the Laurens Summer Celebration!) This event explores Iowa’s multicultural history through the largest group of European origin to settle in our state. More details as it draws closer, but for now I’ll tell you the events will shine light on present-day issues, including:

- Pro- and anti-immigration sentiment
- The value and challenges of bilingualism
- The hurdles and rewards of multiculturalism
- Questions of belonging and exclusion in times of international and domestic conflict

Enough of this planning ahead! Our March book club choice is Jodi Picoult’s Leaving Time. The book, as most of Picoult’s are, is told from three points of view: a child, a psychic, and a detective. Of course, there’s a twist at the end that some of our readers don’t like, but in my opinion, that’s what makes a book good! Grab a copy and join our discussion Monday, March 27 at 7 p.m.

The Laurens Area Youth Group is excited to partner with Iowa KidsNet to provide foster kids with backpacks and needed supplies as they transition to a new living arrangement. Please join us on Wednesday April, 5th at 7 p.m. to hear how you can help fill backpacks and about the Foster Care system.

Thank You!

I want to thank everyone who attended my 80th Birthday Open house at the Country Club, I was overwhelmed by the large turnout! What a surprise when my great granddaughter Ava sang one of my favorite songs “Amazing Grace” and a few others to me at the party! A very special thank you to my kids, grandchildren and great grandchildren for all the work they put into decorating, the photo slide show, the lunch as well as the family evening meal we had with the relatives and everything else they did to make the party so great. I love you all. It was a wonderful afternoon that I will not forget! Thanks for all the cards and notes that people sent or brought to me, I received over 100 of them and enjoyed reading them all.

Thanks again,
Mary Svuba

Dennis Wilson Shared the History of the Orphan Trains

Retired Canadian Pacific Railroad Conductor, Dennis Wilson from Mason City, shared the story of the Orphan Trains for over 90 men, women and children on Tuesday, March 14th at the Albert City Public Library.

After the Civil War, the country grew by leaps and bounds. About 300,000 children, abandoned on the streets of large eastern cities like New York City, were placed on trains and sent to the Midwest in hopes of a future and home with loving families. Many of the children were brought to Iowa. It is believed to be more than 10,000 children over the span of 75 years (1854-1929) of the Orphan Trains. The trains carrying the children sent notices out to the cities along the route informing of their arrival. Chaperones brought the children to churches and community halls large enough for crowds to assemble. If the children were chosen, they would start a new life. Lots of times siblings were separated, never to see each other again.

Many times there was a stigma attached to the children that they carried with them for the rest of their lives. Not feeling loved or accepted, many of the children were neglected, abused, and were delinquents. There is still a sense of shame after all these years. Even the descendants do not want to talk about it, but Dennis Wilson believes that there are lessons applicable today from these train trips of both despair and hope. “History tells you where you’ve been, where you are at, and where you are going” he said. “During the Orphan Train period, labor laws were enacted, including many childcare-related laws. Today we are still trying to deal with child abuse, trafficking, access to education and creating a loving, caring home environment.”

An issue that he touched on was human trafficking of young children as prostitutes in many of our truck stops across Iowa. “One person can make a difference.” he said. If we know someone that is in a position of authority that can help, we need to step up to the plate, speak out and take the necessary steps to help stop this horrific dilemma.
WHY NOT YOU!!!

The Laurens Area Youth Group is excited to partner with Iowa KidsNet to provide Foster kids with backpacks and needed supplies as they transition to a new living arrangement.

Please join us on Wednesday, April 5th at 7 p.m. at the Laurens Public Library to hear how you can help fill backpacks and about the Foster Care system.

Maybe you have considered being a Foster parent but were not sure how, we will have Bambi Schrader from Iowa KidsNet with us that night to answer questions you might have. Bambi has been working in Foster care and adoption for over 20 years and will share with you her personal experience of being a foster/adoptive parent and more about the need for local foster/adoptive homes. Iowa State Field Agronomists to host Palmer Amaranth and Herbicide Update Workshop

Iowa State University Extension and Outreach field agronomists Paul Kassel and Angie Rieck-Hinz will host a Palmer amaranth identification and management workshop on Friday, March 24, from 10 a.m. – 12 p.m. at the ISU Extension and Outreach Humboldt County office, Humboldt. The workshop will also include a discussion regarding the new herbicide traits and use of herbicides.

“Palmer amaranth is a relatively new weed species found in Iowa, so identification and control of this weed is important to keep this species from moving into cropland,” said Rieck-Hinz. “This species is known to be highly competitive and can limit crop production if allowed to become established. The workshop will teach people how to identify the weed and discuss management options.”

Additionally, latest labeling requirements for the use of the dicamba products and use of other herbicides will be shared.

“The management of waterhemp in the soybean crop is a challenge for many farmers,” said Kassel. “This workshop will focus on all available herbicide technology for the management of common waterhemp and amaranth.”

The ISU Extension and Outreach Humboldt County office is located at 727 Sumner Ave in Humboldt. Contact Holly Frerk at 515-332-2201 if planning to attend to ensure course material will be available for everyone. There is no cost to attend and Certified Crop Adviser credits have been requested for this meeting.

Powerful Tools for Caregivers

Do you help take care of an older family member or friend? If so, you are not alone. Over 65 million family caregivers in America provide a vast array of emotional, financial, nursing, social, homemaking and other services on a daily or on an intermittent basis.

Powerful Tools for Caregivers is an educational series designed to provide tools you need to take care of yourself. If you take good care of yourself, you will be better prepared to take good care of your loved one. As a participant, you will learn how to: reduce stress, improve self-confidence, better communicate your feelings, balance your life, increase ability to make tough decisions and locate helpful resources.

Powerful Tools for Caregivers will be offered, beginning on March 23rd in Pocahontas, through a collaboration that includes Pocahontas Community Hospital, Pocahontas County Public Health, Arlington Place of Pocahontas, Pocahontas County Extension, and ISU Extension and Outreach. This program has been tested and evaluated through a grant from the U.S. Administration on Aging. Classes consist of six, 90 minute sessions held once a week. Two experienced leaders, Holly Frerk and Dr. David Brown, will conduct each class. Interactive lessons, discussions and brainstorming help you take the “tools” you choose and put them into action for your life.

Sessions are scheduled on the following Thursdays, March 23rd, 30th and April 6th, 13th, 20th and 27th. Classes will be held at the Pocahontas Community Hospital Board Room, 606 NW 7th Street in Pocahontas from 6:00 to 7:30 pm. There is a $25 fee for the program, though financial assistance is available. To register or for more information, please contact the Pocahontas County Extension Office at 712-335-3103 or by e-mail at hfrerk@iastate.edu

Hort and Home News Website Receives Facelift
New website offers over 2,400 gardening articles

Iowa State University Extension and Outreach has relaunched its Horticulture and Home Pest News website https://hortnews.extension.iastate.edu/, providing a one-stop location for yard and garden information.

More than 2,400 Hort and Home Pest News articles, produced by ISU Extension and Outreach over the last 30 years, are available through the new website, hortnews.extension.iastate.edu.

“The primary objective of this redesigned website is to be a one-stop place for all horticulture news and information,” said Cindy Haynes, associate professor and extension specialist in horticulture with Iowa State University. “More than 30 years of Hort and Home Pest News are available, as are answers to frequently asked questions, and direct links to the Plant and Insect Diagnostic Clinic and Master Gardener webpages.”

The website is the new home to the ISU Extension and Outreach horticulture encyclopedia, an online database of over 280 articles. Over 1,000 frequently asked questions about garden problems and pests, houseplants, lawns, ornamentals, trees and shrubs, fruits and vegetables and other horticulture topics are located on the site.

Additional resources like ISU Extension and Outreach publications and videos can also be found on the site.

“Gardeners are always looking for information on how to do something or to do it better,” said Haynes.

An archive of yard and garden news releases from ISU Extension and Outreach is available through the website, as are podcasts of ISU Extension and Outreach specialist appearances on Iowa Public Radio.

“The depth of knowledge and experience represented through this website is pretty remarkable,” Haynes said. “With our faculty like Richard Jauron, Donald Lewis, Jeff Iles, Laura Jesse, Lina Rodriguez-Salamanca and myself, there is over 100 years of Iowa State experience and information that has been put into this site.”
Yard and Garden: Proper Spring Planting Windows For Garden Vegetables

Spring planting season is upon us, and it’s time to think about how gardens will be populated with vegetables to yield a bountiful harvest later in the year. All vegetables have an optimal planting time that helps them properly mature and maximize their potential. How do those times shake out?

ISU Extension and Outreach horticulturists can help answer your questions about proper planting windows for garden vegetables. To have additional questions answered, contact the ISU Hortline at 515-294-3108 or hortline@iastate.edu.

When should I plant potatoes?
Potatoes should be planted in early spring. Appropriate planting times are late March or early April in southern Iowa, early to mid-April in central Iowa, and mid to late April in northern portions of the state.

Since potatoes are susceptible to several diseases, buy certified, disease-free potatoes at garden centers or mail-order nurseries. Gardeners can purchase seed pieces (tubers that have been cut into sections) or whole potatoes. Small potato tubers may be planted whole. Large potatoes should be cut into sections or pieces. Each seed piece should have one or two “eyes” or buds and weigh approximately 1.5 to 2 ounces. After cutting the tubers into sections, place the freshly cut seed pieces in a humid, 60 to 70 degree Fahrenheit location for one or two days. A short “healing” period allows the cut surfaces to callus or heal over before the seed pieces are planted. Healing of the cut surfaces helps prevent the rotting of seed pieces when planted.

Plant seed pieces (cut side down) and small whole potatoes 3 to 4 inches deep and 1 foot apart within the row. Rows should be spaced 2½ to 3 feet apart.

When should I plant cabbage?
Cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower can be planted outdoors in early April in southern Iowa, mid-April in central portions of the state, and late April in northern counties. Harden (acclimate) plants in a protected location for a few days prior to planting. Cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower perform best in fertile, moist, well-drained soils. Space plants 24 inches apart within the row. Rows should be 24 to 30 inches apart.

When should I plant onions?
Onions can be planted from early April to early May. Onions may be grown from seeds, sets and plants. Plant seeds in rows 12 to 15 inches apart. Cover the seeds with ½ to ¾ inch of soil. When the seedlings are 2 to 3 inches tall, thin the planting. For large, dry onions, plants should be spaced 2 to 3 inches apart after thinning.

Plant onion sets at a depth of 1 to 1½ inches in rows 12 to 15 inches apart. For dry onions, plant sets 2 to 3 inches apart. Sets grown for green onions can be planted closer together. Place plants 1 to 1½ inches deep in rows 12 to 15 inches apart. To produce large, dry onions, space plants 2 to 3 inches apart.

When should I plant radishes?
Radishes can be planted as soon as the ground can be worked properly in spring. When feasible, begin planting in late March in southern Iowa and mid-April in northern counties. Successive plantings can be made every 7 to 10 days through May. Several plantings can also be made in late summer (mid-August to late September) for a fall crop.

Sow radish seeds one-half inch deep in rows that are 12 inches apart. When the seedlings emerge, thin the planting so remaining plants are 2 inches apart.

When should I plant peas?
Peas are a cool season crop. They should be planted as soon as the ground can be worked in spring. Appropriate planting dates are late March in southern Iowa, early April in central Iowa and mid-April in northern portions of the state.
